Meridian Breaks Ground on Hyatt Place Hotel

Meridian Design Build's National Projects Group recently participated in a groundbreaking ceremony for a new 72,500 SF Hyatt Place Hotel in Bowling Green, Kentucky. The new hotel will be located adjacent to Western Kentucky University's Augenstein Alumni Center. The groundbreaking ceremony took place on September 17.

The four-story, 108-room hotel is being completed by Meridian on a design-build basis and will include an outdoor pool, fitness center, and meeting rooms. The hotel, a centerpiece to Bowling Green's downtown revitalization program, is scheduled to open in the Fall of 2014. Development manager Dellisart LLC will oversee operations of the new hotel.

"The addition of a Hyatt Place hotel next to the Augenstein Alumni Center is the cornerstone that will complete that gateway to downtown. This is an exciting opportunity for our community and our campus, and we are pleased to welcome Hyatt Place to Bowling Green." said Gary A. Ransdell, President of West Kentucky University.

Architectural services are being provided by Adkisson & Associates Architects, Inc. and civil engineering work will be completed by Arnold Consulting Engineering Services, Inc.
