Meridian Design Build Meets Sustainability Milestone

Meridian Design Build recently achieved a milestone in their Sustainability Initiative with more than a third of their Project Management staff holding the LEED AP designation.

"We have made it a priority to train our project managers in the area of sustainable design and have encouraged them to pursue LEED accreditation. As a result of these efforts, we expect that several more will become accredited in the coming months," said Paul Chuma, President of Meridian Design Build.

Meridian Design Build joined the US Green Building Council (USGBC) in September of 2007 and has incorporated USGBC guidelines for sustainable design on many of their recent projects.

"Sustainability and energy efficient design have been at the forefront of everyone's mind in recent years. Even clients not yet ready to commit to pursuing LEED Certification on their projects have been looking to us to make recommendations on how we can help them design and construct facilities that minimize impacts to the environment," said Howard Green, Executive Vice President.

Meridian Design Build offers full-service design/build and general contracting services to the industrial, office and commercial markets. More information on Meridian Design Build can be found at www.meridiandb.com.
